
Notices

Posted by paolo67 - 2009/06/20 02:50

Hello,

just installed JCron. Successful but several Notice messages appear despite my php.ini is set as

```
error_reporting = E_ALL & ~E_NOTICE
```

See attached screenshot. Any thought?

Thank you in advance
Paolo http://www.joomlaplug.com/images/fbfiles/files/Screenshot_Joomla____Administration____Mozilla_Firefox.png

Re:Notices

Posted by admin - 2009/06/20 15:57

Have you checked it the php.ini are in effect on the server? Check the Joomla phpinfo tab ; from the looks of the error that doesn't seem to be the case

Regards, Ovidiu

Re:Notices

Posted by paolo67 - 2009/06/21 02:57

It is the php.ini as reported in the Joomla phpinfo tab

Re:Notices

Posted by admin - 2009/06/21 09:39

I am not following your last post, what is a question or confirmation? Could you attach a screenshot?

Ovidiu

Re:Notices

Posted by paolo67 - 2009/06/21 11:05

Sorry Ovidiu, was not clear. I meant I checked the correct php.ini, the problem still occurs

Paolo http://www.joomlaplug.com/images/fbfiles/files/Screenshot_php.png

Re:Notices

Posted by admin - 2009/06/21 11:46

I am not referring to that, you need to check that those settings are in effect on the server, this is why i indicated to check the Joomla backend->phpinfo ab! Ovidiu

Re:Notices

Posted by paolo67 - 2009/06/21 12:00

It is the php.ini in effect on the server according to the Joomla phpinfo tab: /etc/php5/apache2/php.ini

Paolo http://www.joomlaplug.com/images/fbfiles/files/Screenshot_Joomla____Administration____Mozilla_Firefox-28f0e9f2ff4a0e874f1858e0328362ba.png

=====

Re:Notices

Posted by admin - 2009/06/22 05:53

I would advise contacting your hosting support and ask them why the error_reporting variable does not affect the php script output, if it were, then those notices would not be appearing anymore

Regards, Ovidiu

=====